As Real Estate Brokers we are often asked to volunteer for stuff. This week I was asked by one of my colleagues to help out Voboc to stuff back packs for young adults with cancer. Of course, my colleagues and I offered up a few hours of our time to help out, without knowing what the cause was all about. We met Doreen Edward who is the founder of Voboc which is a non-profit organization who help young adults with cancer. A cancer survivor herself, Doreen is very dynamic and she explained to us what her charity was all about. I must say it was a very good feeling, stuffing the back packs with love and all of the goodies that make up the Vo-Pak (venturing out backpack). Check out their website!
